Detention, or Prison?

When most people think of detention, they think of students that are put there for being bad behavior, or being late all the time. Normal detention would consist of students being quiet, and doing homework, and eating their lunch in silence. In the Deland-Weldon detention students are treated like they are in prison..

The Deland-Weldon detention consists of the students of being confined to chairs, and are brutally spoken to in a soft calm voice, by the teacher Ms. Chieu, or Mr. Kirkton who will alternate as warden. The students are all miserable, always coming in with terrified faces and tears in their eyes. They are also forced to eat meals that come in a box, yes, a box. Is this really detention, or is it truly prison?

Spirit Volleyballs

The Deland-Weldon Volleyball Team made volleyballs to hang around town. Coach Jay Schatz cut plywood disks in the machine shop, and the volleyball team painted them in the art room with the assistance of art teacher, Ms. H.L.

School Suffers Massive Blood Loss

In November, the school held their annual blood drive. Students, teachers and community members took turns throughout the day to have their blood typed and collected.

50 Years of School Come to An End

After 19 years at DeLand-Weldon Schools and 50 consecutive years of attending school, either to learn, teach, coach or administrate, Mr. Corey is finally retiring.

Some of the outstanding memories he will take with him are of basketball victories, such as the 2011 defeat of LSA on their home court when they were ranked 13th in the state and had not lost a conference game for 3 years.

Although Mr. Corey is looking forward to spending some leisurely days golfing, he will miss the students and staff at D-W.

Cinderella

Right: The Royal Step-family of Brea B., Emily B., and Gabe W. share a touching moment.

Will you be participating in the play again next year?

Rodger's and Hammerstein's Cinderella was the must-see play of the year, directed by the Band and Chorus teacher, Ms. Adams. This version of the play puts a humorous twist on the classic story. After many, many hours of practicing, and a little bit of improv, the play was presented splendidly. Students were excited to prepare for the night of the play, although some of the boys were unhappy with the makeup application. Afterwards, actors were sad to see their characters go and that the play was over.
